About ACEC Metropolitan Washington

The American Council of Engineering Companies of Metropolitan Washington (ACEC/MW), founded in 1958, is the local organization of the American Council of Engineering Companies. We are the trade association representing America's engineering industry. Our members are just over 100 engineering firms that employ 5,200 professionals providing engineering and related professional services to public and private sector clients across the region. Our members are diverse – representing businesses of varying sizes and specializations designing America's bridges, pipelines, highways, and other critical infrastructure.

ACEC/MW is the voice for America's engineering industry in the Metropolitan Washington area. We advocate for our member firms and the clients they serve across the National Capital Region.
